Owing to the absence of Rev. F. M.

church next Sunday morning, by Rev.
Louis A. Warren of Lexington.

The Senior Christian Endeavors are preparing an excellent home talent play

WATERMELONS GALORE.

Twenty-five wagon loads of watermelons and cantaloupes were on our streets last Monday and seem to have ready sales at fabulous prices.

One cent a pound is usually considered a good price for the melons, but last Monday they seemed to average about five cents a pound.

SALE.

Attention is called to the public sale of the John W. Scott farm, located one half mile from Buena Vista, tomorrow, Friday. This farm contains 288 acres and besides this the live stock, farming implements, and furniture will fall under the hammer of Col. J. M. Dunn.
The land is one of the best producing tobacco and hemp ground in the state.

THE CLUTCHING HAND.

A great many of our friends failed to drop in to see us on court day, and paper and ink cost money. We are sending out notices to a great many of our subscribers and are being forced to drop some of them from our list. If your paper fails to come, don't ask the reason why, but let us have that dollar.

WHAT WOMEN WILL DO.

Suppose you tried to think what fastion never could do. Wouldn't you have fixed on fur in summer as the final impossibility? And yet they did wear fur this summer with the thermometer at 84, the humidity at 91,
the breeze absent, and in that month
in which the Bastile fell and the Declaration of Independence was signed?
Of course you left your coat at home
during those dog days?

PROTRACTED MEETING.

Beginning at the Presbyterian church on September 12th and continuing for two weeks, bible services will be conducted under the leadership of Dr. A. H.
Hibshman, of Lanark, Penn., who comes highly recommended and a great meeting is anticipated. It has been several months since a protracted meeting was held in Lancaster, and it is hoped that much good will be accomplished through this good work.

SELLS FIRST LOAD.

The first load of alfalfa sold in the city was that sold last week by Homer Tinsley. It represented a part of his first cutting and sold at twenty dollars a ton in the bale. Mr. Tinsley has been quite successful with this crop and will make four cuttings from it this year. Quite a number of farmers are becoming interested in alfalfa and are now liming their land preparatory to sowing this month.

LOSES BARN.

Mr. Clarence Green, who lives near Cartersville, had the misfortune to lose his barn and several hundred dollars worth of contents, by fire last week
the result of a stroke of lightning.
He lost all his farming implements, 240 bushels of wheat, two hundred bales of hay and other provender. His loss is about $2,000, with only $500 in insurance. On the same day Ed and Jim Smith lost two horses by lightning.

BLUE RIBBON WINNER.

Mrs. J. R. Mount has added more laurels to her culinary and art abilities by winning several blue ribbons at the Stanford fair last week. Her winnings were as follows: First on calico quilt, first on quart of peach preserves, first on quart of canned peaches, first on canned pears and second on black cake.
Mrs. A. F. Sanders won first on crocheted counterpane, an honor of which she is very proud.

OLD HENRY WRECKED.

Although it is an uncommon occurrence for "Old Henry" to turn up at the Lancaster Depot ten or twelve hours late, due to a wreck, never-the-less it is an uncommon thing for it to wreck as it did last Monday. To make a long story short it simply turned over spilling several cars of coal destined for Lancaster and Richmond. No one was hurt and a wrecking crew put the train in commission for the next day.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The W. C. T. U. will hold its annual election of officers Saturday. All members are urged to be present.

WORK PROGRESSING.

The Raymond Construction Co., of Paris, who have charge of the repairing of the Court House, are making material progress with their work. The painting of the brick walls has about the outside work. Work on the new cupola will begin this week.

DANDY PICTURES.

Some of the best pictures ever seen in Lancaster are now being shown at Roman's Opera House and that they are proving popular is evidenced by the crowds that are attending this house every night. The Fox features that have been running there for the past month or more are still in vogue and Mr. Romans is advertising some in this issue of the Record. You should see "Life's Shop Window" Thursday night and "St. Elmo" on Saturday night, they are both Fox features and dandies.

WORK DELAYED ON ROADS.

The Stanford road from the Lincoln County line has been finished under state aid supervision as far as the Jim Wilmot gate and the ditching has been finished the whole way to Lancaster.
Delay in receiving rock and bad weather have delayed the construction to a considerable extent. When the road is finished there will be no better in the State. Hughes Brothers who have the contract for macadamizing the Lexington road from the city limits to the Fork Church are crushing rock for that road from the A. B. Brown quarry.

MAY CALL CONGRESS.

While the President and his advisors are waiting for full official reports concerning the sinking of the British steamship Arabic and the drowning of five Americans, it is known that the Administration has already decided up on the course it will pursue if the details show that it was a "deliberately unfriendly." It was decided at the last note to Berlin.

It was learned that in the advent of an unfavorable reply that the President will dismiss the German Ambassador von Bernstorff, and then call an extra session of Congress to consider the problem of national defense. In such a case it is reported that the President will ask for a vote of five hundred million dollars, to be used for the reorganization of the Army and Navy,
and Coast defenses.

KENTUCKY RED BERKSHIRE

Create Much Interest At Stanford Fair.

One of the most interesting exhibits at the Stanford fair last week was the showing made by the Kentucky Red Berkshire hogs most of them owned in this county, where practically all of the first prizes were awarded. This is considered the coming hog by a great many people, many saying that they far outclass the Duroc so long popular in this section of the state. Messrs.
Woods Walker and son, the owners of Garrard Chief No. 1, were happy over their winnings, having won first aged sow, with "Lady of the Lake," first gilt under six months, with "Little Princess," first in sweepstakes, with
"Lady of the Lake," second aged boar,
"Garrard Chief," second in sweepstakes,
"Little Princess," second in herd ring and first with "The Kentuckian" in best boar under six months. Robert J.
Walker of Paint Lick, had his hogs in the pink of condition and captured many of the coveted prizes. His handsome hog "Wade Hampton" was the favorite of his class and won first prize as best boar under one year old.
"Wade Hampton" is by "Big Chief," dam "Florence W." Mr. Walker also won with "Florence Nightingale" for best sow under twelve and over six months. The most coveted prize of all went to Robt. J. Walker, when he captured the first prize herd, with "Wade Hampton," "Florence Nightingale," "Kittie Estell" and "Lena J." A. K.
Walker won second with aged sow "Lizzie." This is a fine individual and considered by many the best one in the show.

Mr. W. O. Walker of Stanford, while he only won second for gilt under six months with "Little Queen" he is the proud owner of "Walker's Queen," owned by G. G. Gooch, dam of the "Little Princess" and "The Kentuckian." Mr. W.
D. Denny was on hand with a dandy herd and while the best he could do was second for the best boar under six months. This was won by "Copper King" whom many thought should have won first in his class. Watch out for him next year. Mr. Denny also won second with "Lena J." for best gilt under twelve and over six months. Mr.
Denny bred and raised a great many of the winners at this show and is now the happy owner of "Fancy Lady" and
"Lena J."

There is quite a good deal of friendly rivalry between the breeders of this popular swine and the owners are all justly proud of the showing made at fair and of the growing popularity of the best breed of hogs that Garrard county has ever produced. Mr. J. G.
Burnside sold some nice boars last week
to southern parties at fancy prices.

ACCEPTS PASTORSHIP

Rev. A. J. Cleere To Lead Lancaster
Baptist Church.

Those who had the opportunity to here Rev. A. J. Cleere at the Baptist church here several months ago will be glad to learn that he has accepted the call from the local church and will assume the pastorate the first Sunday in September. We are glad to welcome this elegant gentleman and his family to Lancaster and hope that his success in his profession here will be as great as it has been in the past.

The following is clippings from the Wellington (Ohio) Sentinel:

"Rev. A. J. Cleere officially announced to his congregation his resignation as pastor of the Baptist church Sunday morning, although his intimate friends were aware of the fact for a week or more. Rev. Cleere who has been pastor of the Baptist Church here for the past fifteen months will accept the pastorate of the First Baptist church at Lancaster, Ky., which city is located in the "Blue Grass Region" about thirty miles east of Lexington, Kentucky.
State is noted for its strong Baptist organizations and this church is considered one of the best and the membership is greater than in this city although the town is much smaller.

While Rev. Cleere was enjoying his vacation in Kentucky he was asked to supply the pulpit at Lancaster, which he did for two Sunday's and the people were well pleased with his sermons
they later offered him the pastorate.

The Reverend Cleere came to this city
from Franklin, Ohio, succeeding Rev.
V. A. Persons who is now located in Toledo. He has been in Ohio nine years having served in Franklin a number of years and in Prospect for four years.

The tall Reverend is a native of Kentucky having been born and reared in Ashland and naturally desires to get back to his home state. He has the national brogue of a real "Kaintuck," which often aided him in driving facts home to his congregation. During his pastorate here he has made many loyal friends not only by his ministering to their spiritual needs but also by his personality. He is a brilliant orator and has a peculiar knack of using foreign English language that his listeners quickly caught and absorbed.

In order to give the officials of the church more time to select a minister to succeed him, Rev. Cleere will occupy the pulpit two more Sundays, his resignation to take effect about the last of this month. The congregation and other friends of Rev. and Mrs.
Cleere and family will no doubt greatly miss them but wish the Reverend success in his new appointment."

UNFERMENTED WINE OR GRAPE JUICE.

At this season of the year when grapes are so plentiful, a recipe for unfermented wine is very timely and one that "Aunt Becky" West always uses and recommends. It is as follows:
"Pick grapes, wash and put on stove, boil until seed come out and then put in sack and strain. To every quart of juice add one teacup of sugar. Boil and skim, put in jars or bottles and cork
while hot."

SEVEN COUNTRIES DETERMINED TO RESTORE PEACE IN MEXICO

South and Central American Diplomats Give Valuable Aid to the Administration.

WATCHFUL, waiting in Mexico is no more. The last rites over this policy were said at the conferences between the Latin American diplomats and Secretary Lansing, at which it was decided that the United States, with the moral support and co-operation of Central and South American republics, should restore peace in that country, which has been robbed and looted by the various leaders who have been in power from time to time since the overthrow of Diaz.

The calling in of the South and Central American diplomats was tardy on all sides, but this was not the first time the United States had requested them to aid in Mexico. When our troops had been landed at Vera Cruz, with a large fleet in the harbor, and when the city had been put under military government the A. B. C. mediators at the meeting at Niagara Falls smoothed over the difficulties, and the policy of watchful waiting was resumed.

Conditions failed to improve, and the United States with the other republics on this continent outlived a method of procedure which, briefly stated, follows:

First.—An appeal was made to the Mexican factions to compose their differences in a convention or by such other means as they may regard as practicable.

Second.—If any faction fails to observe this injunction the other factions will be expected to set up a government.

ment, which in due season will be recognized by the United States, the republics of South America and the powers of Europe and the far east.

Third.—The faction that refuses to support the plan will be barred from the privilege heretofore exercised of obtaining support of any kind from either the United States or South America. This means that the opposing faction will be unable to get equipment for military forces or funds to further military operations.

Fourth.—With a full understanding of the purposes of the United States and Latin American influential leaders in Mexico will proceed to the establishment of a provisional government. This government will at once be recognized by the United States and the other great powers.

Fifth.—A plan will be devised to finance the new government of Mexico.

The Appeal Is Sent.

The joint appeal—intended as a final warning before intervention—was signed by Secretary of State Lansing, by the ambassadors of Argentina, Brazil and Chile and the ministers of Bolivia, Uruguay and Guatemala. The minister of Peru pledged his government to support the action taken by the conference, and John Barrett, director general of the Pan-American union, assured the conference that the remaining countries of South and Central America would undoubtedly endorse its action.

After the conference Secretary Lansing made the following announcement: "We agreed or assented to a proposal that a communication be addressed to the different factions in Mexico urging them to compose their differences, and we also agreed on the form which we will recommend to our government with reference to the recognition of a government in Mexico."

Explains Sailing of Warships.

At the outset Secretary Lansing was asked to explain the sailing of American warships to Vera Cruz. Several of the conference felt that the dispatch of the battleships Louisiana and New Hampshire might be interpreted as pledging the conference to an indefinite period of armed intervention in Mexico. But any misgivings that may have existed were quieted by the secretary of state's explanation—afterward characterized by one of the conferees as "too delightfully simple"—that one of the warships was being sent down to take the place of that which is bringing the Brazilian minister up to the United States and that the other was merely moved as a matter of navy department routine.

Something About the Men and Plans to Bring a Speedy End to Reign of Anarchy.

The calling in of the South and Central American diplomats was tardy on all sides, but this was not the first time the United States had requested them to aid in Mexico. When our troops had been landed at Vera Cruz, with a large fleet in the harbor, and when the city had been put under military government the A. B. At the outset Secretary Lansing was asked to explain the sailing of American warships to Vera Cruz. Several of the conference felt that the dispatch of the battleships Louisiana and New Hampshire might be interpreted as the position of attempting to dictate a form of government for Mexico.

Optimistic Feeling Prevails.

The feeling of optimism is shared by all the South Americans who attended the conference. Representatives of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Bolivia, Uruguay, Peru and Guatemala were present. These ambassadors were armed with the support of their respective countries.

But the only threatening feature to the policy is the actions of the Mexican bandits who are operating on the Texas border. Several Americans have recently been killed, and requests have been made for additional troops there. Major General Hugh L. Scott was sent to Mexico by the president to endeavor to preserve peace during the negotiations pending the foundation of the new government. He is holding frequent conferences with the leaders and looking after American interests during the proceedings.

Something about the South American diplomats who are aiding is interesting at this time. Right from the start there was no quibbling, no hesitating over details. To those who believe that Latin America is still under the influence of the manana ("tomorrow") spirit the conferences have been a revelation. If it is the American custom to go down at once, on anything, to "hass tacks," so it is now apparently the South American custom as well. The plans are going ahead on a basis of pure business.

Da Gama a Hustler.

For this, it is asserted, due credit must be given to Ambassador da Gama. If there ever was a being to whom the term of "master" might be truly applied it is surely due to this quiet, forceful looking man from Brazil. A few inches under the average height, just a trifle inclined to stoutness, dignified in his every move, with a countenance that bespeaks a kindly shrewdness and with eyes that are constantly alert, he seems more the ideal American business type than the diplomat. Trained at the feet of one of the world's greatest diplomats of the modern school, the Braganza, in whose suit he first came to the United States in 1885, when Branco solved the territorial dispute that involved Argentina, Bolivia and Brazil, Da Gama has apparently brought to himself all the keenness that distinguished the great master and has, besides, schooled himself to a capacity for work that is amazing.

This view of the Brazilian ambassador is only one of many similar expressions, and its counterpart is found in the assertion that to his excellency Dr. Tomilo S. Naon, the minister of Argentina, must be awarded the title for surety, while to his excellency Senator Eduardo Suarez Mujica, the minister of Chile, is given credit for the most pronounced manifestation of the true Latin spirit.

Men of Different Types.

These three ministers are as different in type as are the Mexican factions. While Da Gama seems to embody a combination of the best ideals of his own country with the distinguishing characteristics of the American business man, Naon is apparently French. If one did not know the last named as Chilean he would be put down at once as the personification of all that bespeaks the true Frenchman. Distinguished by a beard that makes his face the easiest remembered of any one at the conference, the Chilean minister, in both walk and speech, looks very much the Parisian bon viveur and is a person to be approached with awe and trepidation.

The other South American diplomats are equally well known and able men. They are as determined to have lasting peace in Mexico. All are men of action, and their governments are fully as anxious to see an end to the reign of chaos as the United States. No drastic action is likely for a few weeks yet, but when it does come it will mean a good government there.

It is not thought any direct action will be taken for another month or six weeks, but if in that time Carranza has consolidated his position and established a government in Mexico City they think that recognition could not be withheld from the "first chief" without placing the United States in

AIR CRAFT GUNNING SPORT OF THE WAR

Soldier That Does the Work Is Prince of Artillery.

"ARCHIBALD" IS A TERROR.

Atlas Gave Nickname to Their Busy Anti-air Craft Gun, Which is Removed From Place to Place in a Private Car—Aeroplanes Can Withstand Much Shell Fire.

A crack and a whish through the air. No sound is more familiar at the front where the artillery is never silent—the sound of a shell breaking from a gun muzzle and its shrill flight toward the German line to pay them back for some shell they have sent, written a correspondent from the British headquarters in France.

Only this which did not pass over the landscape in a long parabola toward the German lines. It went right up into the heavens at about the angle of a skyhook, for it was Archibald who was on the job.

Six or seven thousand feet over the British trenches there was something as big as your hand against the light blue of the summer sky. This was the target—a German aeroplane.

Wings of Intelligence.

Other features of life in the front may grow commonplace, but never the work of the planes—these wings of the army's intelligence. If they might know all as low as they pleased they might know all that was going on over the lines. They must keep up so high that through the aviator's glasses a man on the road is the size of a pinhead.

Archibald, the anti-air craft gun, sets the dead line. He watches over it as a cat watches a mouse. The trick of sneaking up under the cover of a noon day cloud and all the other man-tricks he knows.

A couple of seconds after that crack a tiny puff of smoke breaks about a hundred yards behind the muzzle. The smoking brass shell case is out of Archibald's steel throat and another shell case with its charge slipped in its place and started on its way to the first puff breaks.

Archibald rushes the fighting. It is the business of the tube to sitetop. The aviator cannot hit back except through its allies, the German, he teres, on the earth. But all that the aviator can see is morttied landscape. From his side Archibald lies no goal.

"At Solsons I was entertained by a general at ten and at breakfast in the city. Bombs continuously passed over Solsons in the direction of Arras. The allied troops constantly are busy extending and strengthening the trenches and barbed wire defenses. At certain places the hostile lines are within sixty feet of each other."

"When not exchanging shots and grenades the soldiers enjoy the intervals of comparative calm, during which newspapers weighted with stones are thrown from one trench to another.

"One day a dog crossed to the French lines bearing the message, 'Please tell Corporal Blank that his wife and children in Lens are well and send him love.'

Why he was named Archibald nobody knows. As his full name is Archibald, the Archer, possibly it comes from some association with the men of archery.

Has His Private Car.

Archibald, who is quite the swellest thing in the army, has his own private car built especially for him. While the cavalry horses lack of the lines grow sleek from inaction, the aeroplanes have taken their places. All the romances and risk of scouting are theirs.

Such of the cavalry's former part as the planes do not play Archibald plays. He keeps off the enemy's fronts. Is you seek temu work spirit of corps and smartness in this theater of France where all the old glamor of war is lacking? You will find it in the attendants of Archibald.

The sport of war is not dead for Archibald. Here you see your target, which is so rare these days when British infantrymen have stormed and taken trenches without ever seeing a German, and the target is a bird—a man bird. Puffs of smoke with bursting hearts of death are clustered around the Tante. They hang where they broke in the still air, one follows another in quick succession—for more than one Archibald is firing before your entranced eyes.

It is amazing how much shell fire an aeroplane can stand. Aviators are accustomed to the whiz of shell fragments and bullets and to have their planes punctured and ripped. Though their engines are put out of commission and frequently though wounded, they are able to limp back to the cover of their own lines.

The Comrade In White

Before the guns at Neuve Chapelle A gallant soldier fighting still, Lost in the swirling tide. Wake from 'black dreams at dawn's gray light. To find a comrade clothed in white Was kneeling at his side.

With tender care each wound he bound And wrapt with clean, soft linen rounds, And oh, his soul was such That all the horror, all the pain The soldier would have faced again.

But gentle touch!

From fire and shell the storm swept field Next morning no defense could yield When the new fight began.

The guns would roar at break of day,

What friend was this who dared to stay And tend a dying man?

What friend was this? For where he

In silent prayer, the soldier slept? Or did he dream anew?

That on his hands and feet and side Were drops of blood and starting, cried,

"But you troubled me of late."

MODERN TORPEDO TERRIBLE WEAPON

Weighs 2,800 Pounds and Is Twenty-three Feet Long.

COST IS $3,000 TO $9,000.

Will Tear Through Sides of a Double Skinned Ship and Then Explodes. Loaded Only with High Explosives. Either Gun-cotton or Nitroglycerin. What Happens as It Strikes.

The up to date torpedo is a loaded automobile shaped like a cigar, made to run in a certain direction in a fixed time and explode when it strikes something that offers sharp resistance. A reliable one, properly equipped with explosives and running gear, costs from $3,000 to $9,000, according to size. A large torpedo is twenty-three feet long, twenty-one inches in diameter and weighs 2,800 pounds and it tears a hole 30 by 10 feet in the bottom of a ship of two skins.

"The torpedo," said an expert of the navy, "has four principal parts—the war head, which carries the explosive; the air tank or fuel chamber, the engine and the steering gear and the balance chamber. The explosive head is filled with some high explosive—gun cotton, etc.—and is provided with a percussion detonator. This strikes a hard or solid substance, and the explosive goes off instantaneously.

Gun-cotton or Nitroglycerin.

"The explosive head is the foremost compartment of the torpedo and contains the deadly charge and the pistol with which it is fired. Gun-cotton and nitroglycerin are the high explosives generally used for submarine purposes.

There are many others, but these form the foundation for most of them. Gunpowder of the sort used by the country boy to shoot at a rabbit or a squirrel is no longer used. The high explosive is more powerful than gunpowder. Gunpowder burns quicker than the high explosive, and it splinters around if scattered on the ground, but it explodes if confined in a close place.

The high explosive will burn if you strike a match to it, but not so easily as gunpowder. A sudden blow will apply heat to an explosive and set it off.

"The explosive head strikes the bottom of a ship, and a 'detonation' not an 'explosion' takes place. The mass of high explosive seems to explode at once, and that is what is desired, as the most sudden blow will knock a hole in the ship. Detonation is detonated by fulminate of mercury, which, when ignited by a blow, expands 2,500 times its original size. The sudden expansion gives a blow to the gun-cotton that detonates it."

"The torpedo would have about the same effect on a collier that it would on a big merchant vessel. We have never tested thoroughly the effect of a torpedo blow on an oil tanker such as the Hindoo. We are doing that now.

"After the torpedo struck it would be blown to bits and most of the pieces would go to the bottom of the sea. Some fragments might go ashore and become entangled in the splinters made by the detonation.

There is an infinite number of funds in the Pacific ocean, and there is a diversity of condition among the inhabitants of the different islands. Fifty years ago I knew more about them than I do now. When I was a boy of eighteen I shipped on a small steam vessel running from San Francisco among these islands, trading by the way. The captain, Simpson, was then quite an old man and had sailed among them for a number of years. He knew the character of the people of the different islands and told us that, while most of them were approachable, there were a few at which he would not care to touch unless with a numerous crew and with plenty of arms and ammunition.

During one of our voyages we had had luck from the start. Our crew was a small one when we left San Francisco. Two men were taken ill within a week after we left, and both died. Another fell down an open hatchway, and still another was washed overboard and lost.

We had passed the Hawaiian and crossed the equator not far from the International date line when we struck a northerner that drove us on to a point directly north of the Pigs. During the storm we shipped a son that drove one man before him and washed another one overboard. This left us the captain, the mate and son, hardly had the storm blown itself out when something about the firebox gave out and we were obliged to let the fires go down in order to find out what it was. We had not enough to keep steaming, but we had enough to keep steaming.

Just before the captain gave the order to put out the fires I noticed him looking intently at an island lying off our port bow and heard him tell the mate that he believed it to be one from which on a previous voyage he had narrowly escaped with his life.

Having found the natives bent on plunder and ready to strike any weak crew that came within their reach, he did not relish the idea of putting out the fires in that locality.

However, there was no choice in the matter, and with the firebox had cooled down, one of our number went into it for an examination. Unfortunately the wind was blowing straight toward the island. Presently we saw a number of canoes coming out from the shore. The captain looked grave. Under sail we couldn't make four knots, and we were too few to defend ourselves against the swarm of dusky men who were coming for us. The mate suggested that they were only coming out for trade or to beg and wouldn't harm us. The captain said he knew better; they would murder us, take what they wanted and either get the ship to the shore or sink her.

The only chance there seemed to be for us was to hide. We all went down and got into the firebox, where a man was working and closed the door. The hatch fell and could be opened only from the outside, but this didn't trouble us, for the man who had been at work had his tools, and when we wanted to get out it would be possible for him to bore a hole near the hatch so that it could be lifted.

The furnace room was pretty dark, and since we all packed ourselves in the far end of the firebox we were not likely to be seen except by a pair of first rate eyes. We waited in suspense till we heard men tramping about above. They must have been surprised to find the vessel deserted, but delighted as well, considering that there was much plunder for them. We heard them everywhere, evidently collecting what they wanted. The door of the firebox was opened twice, but whoever opened it shut it again without taking the trouble to make an examination.

The visitors remained on board till we began to feel the vessel rolling considerably; then the sounds suddenly ceased. It was evident that the sea was getting rough, and they did not dare stay longer. Then Captain Simpson directed the man who had been repairing the firebox to drill a hole so that the hatch could be lifted.

Boring a hole in wood and iron are two different things. The one can be done in seconds; the other may take hours. The man had been drilling some time when we began to feel water on the firebox door. Bringing the light the workman had with him, and by which we saw water trickling in at several points.

Every man of us paled. The ship had been scuttled, and we were penned in to be carried to the bottom.

The man who was drilling had splendid nerve. He did not lose his head, but kept steadily on, conscious of the fact that he must make an opening before the ship sank and not knowing how soon she would sink. When he was nearly through, renewing his drill and putting in a steel implement, he hammered it through. In a few minutes he inserted his fingers and lifted the hatch.

The water had made considerable headway, but not so much that it could be seen pouring through an auger hole in the side. We plugged it and, rushing on deck, saw that we had been blown past the island and were drifting away from it. Then we manned the pumps for awhile, completed the work in the firebox and in due time were once more steaming safely on.

If this plan is strictly adhered to it will be found of inestimable value.

USE OF COLOR.

How to Employ It Successfully in Home Furnishing.

In no other field has the right use of color been so neglected as in the furnishing of the American home, and nowhere else could its influence be so wide or beneficial. The use of color has countless possibilities.

The individual, spontaneous choice of color, however, is not always best or wisest in the furnishings of a home. First, the mental influences of color must be taken into account. Consider, for example, the effects of the three elemental primary colors—yellow, red and blue.

Yellow is nearest to sunlight. Mellow dispositions require this color, although they do not choose it. Yellow brings cheer and light into a dark, gloomy room.

Red is symbolic of blood, fire and excitement. Even an infant is excited by red, for the sight of it actually irritates the nerves. Therefore, since the keynote of all homes should be rest, and red in my large area destroys restfulness, it should be handled with special caution. It may be introduced successfully into drawing rooms, club-rooms and dining halls, where gayety and a certain amount of excitement are desirable, but for other interiors it should be employed only in occasional details.

Rarely in public buildings and almost never in private homes is red room suitable.

Blue is the coldest color note and makes a room restful and cool. For this reason it is especially pleasing in warm sections of the country, in summer houses, in sunny south rooms and also in bedrooms—for it is always suggestive of rest. An entirely blue room may prove rather monotonous, but this can be avoided by the introduction of orange, the complementary color, as a decorative note. The orange adds both warmth and interest.

Orange, the combination of yellow and red, is symbolic of light and heat, which makes it the hottest color possible. Since it is the strongest and most intense of colors, it should be used only in small areas for emphasis.

Violet, composed of red and blue, suggests heat and cold combined, which results in mystery. It is the color of shadows; it expresses restrained heat or mystery and gloom, and this is the psychological reason for its use in mourning and in religious rites. The use of violet is not often practical in home furnishings, although it may be used to dim a room having too much sunlight. Violet hangings are pleasing where there is a large window exposure.

Green, the result of mixing yellow and blue, expresses light and coolness. Generally speaking, it is the most peaceful color that can be used in interior furnishings, for it eliminates the nerve exciting red and combines rest and cheer, thus which nothing can be better for a home.

To Preserve Linen.

A very excellent plan for preserving linens and underwear and our which was used successfully by a very good housekeeper is to place the fresh articles as they come from the laundry at the bottom of the pile in sideboard, dresser or linen chest, leaving the other ones on top. In this way the same articles are not used week after week, but come into use every three, four or five weeks, according to the supply.

It will thus be seen that the wear and tear is less than if they were used constantly, and as going through weekly washings, as is sometimes the case if no system is used in piling them away.

If this plan is strictly adhered to it will be found of inestimable value.

A WISE JUDGE

TENNESSEE OFFICIAL WINS LONG FIGHT

J. W. Seaton of Linden, Clerk of the Circuit Court of the Twelfth Judicial District of Tennessee, was for years a sufferer from stomach troubles—in part a result of his confining work. He tried doctor after doctor. He tried medicines without end.

One day he took a dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. He wrote:

"Your medicine is the best in the world for any form of stomach trouble. I am glad to say that after taking the full treatment I feel that I am well.

"Had very severe pains in my stomach all the time. One bottle of your medicine did me ten times as much good as all the doctors' medicine that I took for two years. My family physician told me that I would never be any better—today I am well. I have gained twenty-five pounds."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your drugist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

We Think So, Too.

"Charles, you're spending too much money this year. Too many dances, too many clothes, too many taxes, too many—" "Well, father, I'll tell you now I look at it. It seems to me that every family ought to be able to support one gentleman." —Cornell Widow.

Found Wanting.

A New York visitor called us a "hick" because we have never seen a game of golf, but at the same time he confessed that he never saw a watermelon on the vine and couldn't tell when one was ripe. He was indignantly dismissed from our bucolic presence.—Houston Post.

A Hint to Spenders.

"Va-as," said the Maine Philosopher, as the touring car flashed through the town at a 40-mile clip, "ez the Poet once said to his lady friend Amnesia, them ez bakes too rapin on the rads of life lose a lot o' tuff class biled lobster that might be et on the way."

There's a Difference.

An enterprising gentleman of the bixby West, who superintends the "railroad eating house" in his town, has recently hung out a sign that furnishes considerable amusement to those who pass by, says Lippscott. It reads: "Pies like mother used to make, five cents; pies like mother used to try to make, ten cents."

Ancient Dentistry.

Dentistry seems to have been practiced on this side of the ocean almost as early as Europe or Asia. It is quite likely, indeed, that the art of filling teeth was first discovered here.

At any rate, pre-Columbian skulls from both Ecuador and Mexico are in evidence having teeth richly inlaid with gold and in some instances precious stones.

Banana Juice for Snake Bites.

In snake-infested countries banana juice is being exploited for snakebite. To test the efficiency of this simple remedy, F. W. Fitzsimmons experimented with the venom of cobras, puff adders and other serpents, trying the banana juice upon animals bitten by the snakes. In no case could it be discovered that the alleged "cure" had any beneficial effect.

The End of It All.

Measuring things by dollars, by hours, by pounds and yardsticks, measures everything accurately enough except the one thing we wish to measure, which is a man's soul. We are producing the material things of life faster, more cheaply, more shoddily, but it is open to question whether we are producing happier men and women, and that is what we are striving to do at the end of it all.

Diplomacy.

"Look here, Charlie," said one young undergrad to another, who had been asked to run his eye over a letter which his friend had written to his father, in which there was the inevitable request for money, "you've spelled jug, gug!" "I know," said Charlie, "but you see I need the cash, and don't want the old man to think I'm putting on airs. That's how he spells it."

FOURTEEN YEARS IN STOCK.

The latest coincidence which has just come to my knowledge (writes a correspondent) befell an elderly gentleman well known in literary circles. Wishing to refer to a book he had used in his schooldays, he visited the second-hand shop in Charing Cross road which specializes in this class of work. On inquiry he found they had one copy of the volume in stock. When he opened it he found on the front page his own name written there well over forty years ago.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A neurotic admirer in the front row stood up and yelled, "He is the greatest man since St. Paul was snatched up to Heaven." The Independence enthusiast was perhaps trifling indiscreet in his comparison, but if St. Paul had have been snatched up to heaven, he would not have disappeared from public view any quicker than has Wm. GOOD REVIVAL

Speaking of the revival at Freedom church, Mrs. Leslie Sebastian, said:

We have just closed a great meeting at old Freedom church. We had two additions for baptism and five by restoration and letter. It was an old fashioned meeting. People came for miles in two-horse wagons, horse-back buggies and any way to get there. Evangelist J. L. Dotson, of Harrington, did the preaching and I think he is one of the best personal workers I ever saw. He knows his business (the bible) and he knows how to go after men and women for the service of our Lord. May God help him in his great work. A neat little sum of $65. was given him.

McCARTY.

The burial of Midshipman William McCarty, of Stanford, Ky., who died on board the battleship Ohio at San Francisco August 16, will take place in Lexington Cemetery Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. The funeral services will be held in Stanford, at the home of his father J. M. McCarty, Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. William McCarty was formerly a student at State University and had many friends in this city and section. He had just completed the summer cruise on the Ohio and the ship had arrived at San Francisco to participate in the exposition ceremonies when he was stricken with a fatal attack of spinal meningitis. Midshipman McCarty was given full military honors in the services on shore at San Francisco a week ago and two hundred officers and men accompanied the body. A salute of one hundred guns was fired from the batteries of the warship before the body started on its long trip across the continent to its resting place in Kentucky. Friends of Midshipman McCarty have given two beautiful floral wreaths which were made up by a local florist. One is a pillow of white asters and roses with the letters, "U. S. S. Ohio" across the face. The other is an anchor made from pink asters and lilies, lettered "Classmates". —Lexington Leader.

NOT MUCH DOING IN THE TRADING LINE.

Last Monday brought only a medium crowd to town and had it not been that on this day that Circuit court also opened, a much smaller crowd would have shown up. There were about three hundred cattle on the market and most of them changed hands at satisfactory prices. Trading in mules was limited to a few head and no mule colts were sold at any price.

The following were some of the purchases made: Louis Peal of Nicholasville, ten head of 100 pound cattle at $22 a head, George Peal six cattle at $22 a head, T. C. Rankin 22 head of feeders at $5.75 a round. W. W. West to Robinson and Pose 11 calves at $22. T. C. Rankin to D. C. Rankin 60 head of feeding cattle for 74 cents. R. L. FOREST EXTENSION, STATE NURSERIES

Demand For Material at State Nurseries Shows That Kentucky People Are Beginning to Plant Trees As Well As Cut Them Down

Frankfort, Ky.—(Special)—It is patent to those individuals who have made a study of the matter that there are certain areas of Kentucky which are more valuable for the production of forests than for agriculture or pasture. In fact, there are certain areas which never will produce anything except timber crops. In order to encourage the planting of these areas to timber, and also encourage the planting of timber or worn out lands for regenerative purposes and to prevent erosion, the State Board of Forestry, early in its work, provided for two nurseries—one at Louisville (which is the larger) and one at Frankfort, which is hardly a year old at the present time. The nursery at Louisville was started early in the fall of 1913, and has been gradually increasing its capacity. Last fall the first sale of stock was made from the Louisville nursery, amounting to one thousand black locusts and one hundred catalpa seedlings. That such nursery supplies are wanted in the State is shown by the fact that, if available, at least ten thousand black locusts could have been sold and an indefinite number of other species.

The varieties which have been planted in the nurseries have been (with the exception of some species with which it was decided to experiment) confined almost entirely to native Kentucky trees of special commercial importance. Just what number of seedlings will be available this fall for distribution and sale it is impossible at this time to determine on account of the earliness of the season. The seed beds were very materially increased within the year. One feature of the nursery work at Louisville was the planting of one-half bushel of apple seed. It is eventually expected that the Louisville nursery will be able to furnish apple stock of standard variety to individuals around the State and that the orcharding which is becoming a feature of agricultural work in Kentucky will in this way be materially assisted. Also the nursery is experimenting with varieties of walnuts, chestnut, pecans and other nut trees which produce commercial crops.

GATHERING TREE SEEDS

An infant industry in Kentucky developed by State Nurseries.

The experience in growing trees at the State nursery has shown very clearly that in many cases it is not possible to get tree seeds of the native species at the time and in the condition desired. Kentucky is peculiar in that up to very recently there has been no agency or individual interested in the gathering of tree seed in its borders. The demand for the tree seeds in the State nurseries at Louisville and Frankfort has started in a small way a new industry in the gathering of tree seeds within the State. Last year a considerable portion of the seed planted was obtained from Kentucky. Several small boys had become interested in this line of work and gathered a considerable quantity of seed of certain varieties. It is expected this fall that the bulk of the seed planted in the State nurseries will be obtained within the State from native varieties. The gathering of tree seed offers an attractive field for a limited number of individuals, particularly bright boys, who are willing to take the time and trouble necessary to distinguish tree species.

INTEREST IN SHADE TREES

State Forester Prepared to Answer Questions With Regard to Shade Trees.

With every passing year the interest of the citizens of Kentucky in the shade trees of the cities, towns and villages, along public highways and on private lands and estates has become more keen, for the reason that our people as a whole are gradually coming to an appreciation of the worth of individual trees and of tree communities from an aesthetic point of view, and are alive to their value as factors for health and comfort in the community. This is a natural development in line with an awakening public interest in parks, public playgrounds, better roads and highways and the development of attractive surroundings on the farm. In all this the trees play a very important part. Then, too, throughout the state the present shade trees, which are to a very considerable extent remnants of the original forest, are decaying, deteriorating and dying. Their owners are interested most decidedly in their preservation, if pos-

BLACK WALNUT, CHESTNUT AND RED OAK SEEDLINGS, FRANKFORT NURSERY

All these species are excellent commercial species and relatively fast growing varieties. All furnish timber which will be as valuable fifty years from now as to-day. Walnut is in special demand at the present time for gun stocks on account of the Great European War.

WALNUT SEEDLINGS, KY. STATE FOREST NURSERY

Black Walnut is one of the most available species for general planting in Kentucky and is valuable for a large number of uses.

BLACK LOCUST SEEDLINGS, KY. STATE FOREST NURSERY

Black Locust has many advantages for planting. It grows fast, is durable in contact with the soil, and is valuable for soil regeneration and fixation.

RED OAK SEEDLINGS AT FRANKFORT NURSERY

Red Oak is the fastest growing of American Oaks. It is particularly valuable on this account as a shade tree along streets and roads or on lawns. It is also desirable on account of its brilliant coloring in autumn and the fact that it is not especially subject to insect attacks. The Red Oak also furnishes a valuable commercial timber and is especially recommended for planting in commercial plantations.

FOREST TAXATION

One of the most important factors in connection with the growing of trees for commercial purposes is the matter of taxation, and this is a matter which so far as Kentucky is concerned, has had little attention. In the first place, there is no classification of land within the State for taxation purposes. It is a generally accepted theory among experts in this matter at the present time that there is only one fair method of taxation which may be applied to land maintained by the owner in forest growth and that is that there should be a tax placed on the land which shall be an annual tax, and another tax placed on the forest crop when it is harvested. In no other manner does it seem probable that reforestation of suitable areas throughout the State may be accomplished, since in the first place, on account of the character of the investment the owner of the land must be assured before hand just what his taxes on the land are to be, and in the second place the risks attendant upon the raising of a forest crop, because of the long period of years before it reaches maturity, make it essential that the crop of forest products shall be taxed at maturity when it is harvested, rather than that an annual tax shall be imposed. Certain States have already gone a long way in this direction and Pennsylvania has recently passed three laws dealing with the matter of forest taxation and the classification of forest land which embrace the best features of recent thought on this subject. The essentials of the recent Pennsylvania law are as follows:

1. Classification of suitable land set aside by the owner for forest purposes as auxiliary forest reserves.

2. Agreement with the State in maintaining such land in forest growth and penalties for failure to carry out agreement.

3. Assessment of land classified as auxiliary forest reserves at $1.00 per acre annual tax.

4. Payment by owner of 10 percent of the value of the forest products when harvested to the county to be distributed among the proper county funds.

5. Fixed charge on auxiliary forest reserve land of two cents per acre for schools and two cents per acre for roads.

Under these provisions it is obvious that the growing of timber on suitable areas would be reduced to a practical business basis.

Kindly look at the label on this paper and if you owe us a dollar, we wish you would mail us a check at once.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow

This Lancaster Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are frequently symptoms of kidney trouble, and a remedy which is recommended for the kidneys should be taken in time.

Doan's Kidney Pills is a good remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has acted effectively in many cases in Lancaster. Follow the advice of a Lancaster citizen.

Frank Hibbard, Water St., Lancaster, says, "I had weak kidneys and their action was irregular and often painful. My back pained me and it was then that I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They fixed me up in good shape. The pain left and my kidneys became normal."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills is the same that Mr. Hibbard had. Foster-Slithburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. George A. Carter who has been ill in the Lexington Sanatorium since June 1914. The body was brought here and buried Monday. Three daughters and two sons are left without a father's care or a mother's love, his wife having died several years ago. They have our sympathy and we can only point to the only true comforter in this bereavement as the one who can heal their wounded hearts.

Scholl is progressing nicely at this place with Mr. E. E. Estridge and Miss Lenna Hallon as teachers. The enrollment is the highest recorded. Our new school house is "in a thing of beauty and a joy forever". It has two large, well lighted class rooms, two cloak rooms and a large porch. A cistern has been made by the porch so every thing is convenient and pleasant. We have one of the best, if not the best rural school buildings in the county. Our trustee, Mr. C. S. Roop, is interested and enthusiastic and has his eyes open for our needs and anything to help us. He is also chairman of this division and has already visited a number of the schools finding that they have a good beginning.
